Teddy's Life Threatened

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Police established a patrol around the home of Sen. Edward M. (Teddy) Kennedy, D-Mass., after being informed of a threat on his life, authorities reported today.

A spokesman for the Fairfax County, Va., police said "there's a patrol car cruising the general area" when asked whether special precautions were being taken to guard the senator, sole survivor of the three Kennedy brothers.

The police said they were informed yesterday by the senator's office of a threat on his life.

One of Kennedy's aides, reluctant to discuss the matter, said only that "similar things have happened before" and that the senator was spending the rainy day at home.
